BIOGRAPHICAL

She went to Argentina about 1878 or 1879, in the time of President Sarmiento, and was one of the first teachers from the United States engaged in educational work in the National Normal Schools of Argentina, introducing the Kindergarten system throughout the republic. She was retired in accordance with her contract with the government, about 1899, and was generously pensioned during the rest of her life. She was the author of several books and pamphlets on kindergarten.
