BIOGRAPHICAL

The following account was written by Calvin's son, Albert.

“Calvin's mother died when he was a few months old while traveling to Nine Partners (Amenia), NY. As Calvin was with his mother at this time, he was placed in the care of someone who was with his mother at the time she died of typhoid. He apparently remained with this person until about two years of age, when he was given over to the care of a Mrs. John Washburn who lived between Taconic and Spencertown. His father Judah came to take him away with him when Calvin was seven years old, but Mrs. Washburn prevailed upon the father to let his son remain for a time—which he did, until Calvin was 14 years of age. At that time, with 1 shilling in his pocket, he went to live with one Amos Bryan to learn the carpenter's trade. (See the account of this period in his father's record, LN 1238.)

Apparently, by 1830, he became a blacksmith or manufacturer as indicated by the following notice, which he had printed by Kelley & Low, Telegraph and Observer Office, Poughkeepsie, NY.

PLOUGH FACTORY — The subscriber at the Wind Mill in Amenia, is now finishing a large stock of CAST IRON Ploughs which the experience of last season has fully shown the great advantages they possess over the common kind.

The subscriber now in connection with the Hudson Furnace will have in operation near his establishment in the course of the season following, a FURNACE, for making all kinds of Castings. Ploughs and Cradles repaired at the shortest notice. Old Castings, taken in payment for shares.

There are ploughs made in this country of a soft and spurious kind, intended to imitate and are offered for sale, as Chamberlin's Ploughs. This is indeed a dark figure in the character of any man, although practiced in this case by men who profess to be children of light.
