BIOGRAPHICAL

John McWhorter graduated from Beloit College (Beloit, WI), in 1856; took a position as teach in a Wisconsin institution for the Deaf and Dumb. In 1869, he accepted a call as Superintendent of the Louisiana Institution for the Deaf and Blind in Baton Rouge, and in 1877, he moved onto his sugar plantation situated about 11 miles from Baton Rouge, where he stayed three years, when he was appointed Principal of the Western Pennsylvania Institution for the Deaf which was then located at Turtle Creek, now at Edgewood, Allegheny Co., PA. Although he was a strong man, the change from Louisiana to Pennsylvania in the winter brought on bronchial consumption from which he died.

In 1886, Eugenia was living at Albert Lea, Minnesota, in 1900, she was Central City, CO, and in 1911, she was living at Denver, CO.
