BIOGRAPHICAL

He was of Leominster, MA, and later settled at Ashburnham, MA, where he manufactured chairs. In 1876, he removed to San Francisco, CA, and then to Napa, CA, where he owned extensive vineyards.

In 1879, she and her two sons returned to Massachusetts, and located at Gardner, MA.

The Wright-Chamberlin Genealogy slips a cog on her record wherein it indicates the following about Aurelia: "She died at Jamaica Plains, a part of Boston, and was buried in Forest Hill Cemetery, Boston, May 16, 1876." The next sentence reads: "In 1879, Mrs. Burrage and her two sons returned to Massachusetts, locating at Gardner, where she died October 12, 1899." Note that it was he who was supposed to have died 12 Oct 1899!?

The History of Newbury, Vermont, and the 1850 census calls her Amelia.

The Wright-Chamberlin Genealogy says he had a previous marriage but gives no details.
